

Abstract

The present invention relates to a method for producing cheese from cows milk wherein milk or a fraction of milk is treated with a phospholipase and heat treated during or after phospholipase treatment, and the treated milk or milk fraction is used for producing cheese. The methods 5 results in a decreased oiling off of the cheese when heated and/or in an improved cheese yield.